STEP 4: MEDIATION

Timeline: Within 30 days if Steps 1-3 do not resolve the issue

Objective: Use neutral third-party mediator to facilitate resolution

What is Mediation?

Mediation is a voluntary process where a neutral third party (mediator) helps both sides reach a mutually acceptable agreement. The mediator does not make decisions but facilitates communication and negotiation.

Benefits of Mediation:

- Less expensive than arbitration or litigation
- Faster resolution (typically 1-2 sessions)
- Confidential process
- Preserves business relationships
- Both parties control the outcome
- Non-binding (unless agreement is reached)

Actions:

1. Both parties agree to participate in mediation
2. Select mediator:
 - Mutually agreed upon individual
 - Local mediation service
 - Construction dispute specialist
3. Split mediation costs equally (unless otherwise agreed)
4. Prepare mediation statement outlining position and desired outcome
5. Attend mediation session(s)
6. If agreement is reached, sign binding settlement agreement

Mediation Resources:

- American Arbitration Association (AAA): www.adr.org
- Local bar association mediation services
- State court-annexed mediation programs
- Private mediation services

Mediation Documentation:

Mediator selected:

Contact: _____

Phone: _____

Date of mediation: _____

Cost: $ _____ (split equally)

Agreement reached: ☐ Yes ☐ No

Settlement amount/terms:

If mediation is successful, both parties sign settlement agreement and dispute is resolved. If mediation fails, proceed to Step 5.

STEP 5: ARBITRATION OR LITIGATION

Timeline: If all other methods fail

Objective: Obtain binding decision from arbitrator or court

OPTION A: BINDING ARBITRATION

What is Arbitration?

Arbitration is a formal process where a neutral arbitrator (like a private judge) hears evidence from both sides and makes a binding decision. The decision is final and generally cannot be appealed.

Process:

1. File demand for arbitration with arbitration organization (AAA, JAMS, etc.)
2. Pay filing fee (typically $1,000-$3,000+)
3. Select arbitrator (or use arbitration service's selection process)
4. Conduct discovery (exchange of information/evidence)
5. Attend arbitration hearing
6. Arbitrator issues binding decision
7. Decision is enforceable in court

Pros: Faster than court litigation • Less formal procedures • Arbitrator may have construction expertise • Private and confidential

Cons: Can be expensive (arbitrator fees, attorney fees) • Limited appeal rights • Discovery may be limited

OPTION B: SMALL CLAIMS COURT

When to Use:

Small claims court is appropriate when the dispute amount is below the state's small claims limit (typically $5,000-$10,000 depending on state).

Process:

1. File claim at county small claims court
2. Pay filing fee (typically $30-$100)
3. Serve defendant with claim
4. Attend hearing (no attorneys required in most states)
5. Present evidence to judge
6. Judge issues decision (usually immediately)

Pros: Inexpensive and fast • Simple procedures, no attorney needed • Quick resolution (typically within 30-90 days)

Cons: Limited to lower dollar amounts • Limited discovery • Appeal rights may be limited

OPTION C: CIVIL LITIGATION

When to Use:

Civil litigation in regular court is typically used for larger disputes exceeding small claims limits or when arbitration is not required by contract.

Process:

1. Hire attorney
2. File complaint in civil court
3. Serve defendant with complaint
4. Defendant files answer
5. Discovery phase (depositions, interrogatories, document requests)
6. Pre-trial motions and hearings
7. Trial (before judge or jury)
8. Judge or jury renders verdict
9. Right to appeal

Pros: Full discovery rights • Right to jury trial • Right to appeal • Established rules of evidence and procedure

Cons: Expensive (attorney fees, court costs, expert witnesses) • Time-consuming (can take 1-3+ years) • Public record • Uncertain outcome
